To The Mothers

This Book, which is a compilation of the records of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and others in Marion County who had a part in the World War, is reverently dedicated to the Mothers—especially the mothers of those who sleep—some beneath the White Cross in France—others in the Homeland.

Pattie D. Matlock.

The American's Creed

BELIEVE IN the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. ¶ I, therefore, believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

WOODROW WILSON

Twenty-eighth President of the United States

Born Dec. 28, 1856, Staunton, Va. Married Ellen Louise Axen, of Savannah, Ga., June 24, 1885. Mrs. Wilson died Aug. 6, 1914, in Washington, D. C. Mr. Wilson married Mrs. Edith Bolling Gault Dec. 18, 1915.

He was graduated from the University of Virginia 1881, and holds the degrees A. B., Princeton, 1879; A. M., Princeton, 1882. He practiced law in Atlanta, Ga., 1882-1883; was president of Princeton University Aug., 1902. to Oct., 1910; Governor of New Jersey, Jan., 1911, to March, 1913; was elected President on the Democratic ticket Nov. 4, 1912, and re-elected Nov. 6, 1916.

FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies

Born Oct. 2, 1851, Pyrenees, France. He was a Lieutenant in the Franco-Prussian War at the age of nineteen, and when but twenty-six was Captain of Artillery. Won worldwide distinction as an instructor in military tactics and strategy. Made Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies March 28, 1918.

JOHN JOSEPH PERSHING

General

Born in Linn County, Mo., 1860. Graduated from U. S. Military Academy, West Point, 1886. Received degree LL.B., University of Nebraska, 1893. Married Miss Frances Warren, Jan. 26, 1905. S. Army, June 12, 1913; in command of troops sent against Villa, 1916; General in command of the U. S. troops in France, 1917.

The Service Flag

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with fear and a woman's prayer ;
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

Blue is your star in its field of white,
Dipped in the red that was born of fight ;
Born of the blood that our forbears shed
To raise your mother, The Flag, o'erhead.

And now you've come, in this frenzied day,
To speak from a window—to speak and say :
"I am the voice of a soldier son
Gone to be gone till the victory's won.

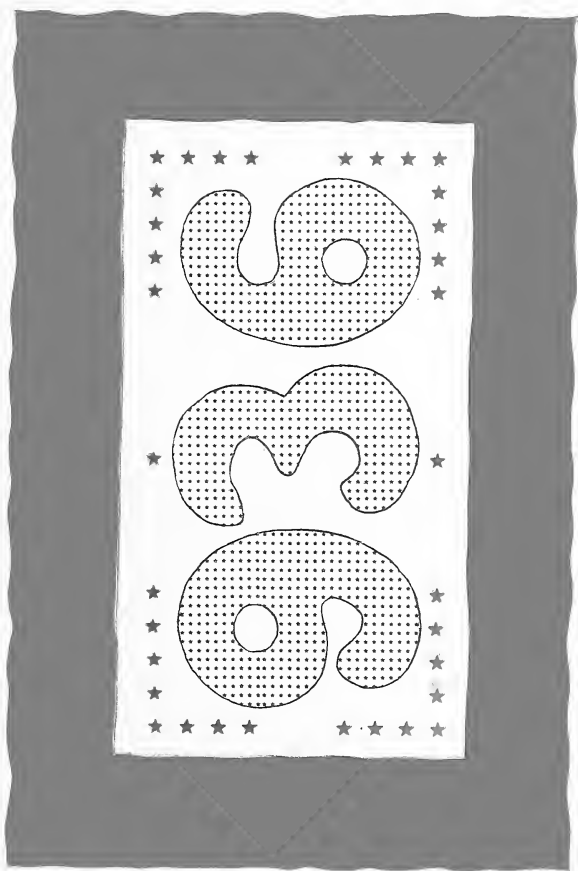

"I am the flag of The Service, sir ;
The flag of his mother—I speak for her
Who stands by my window and waits and fears,
But hides from the others her unwept tears.

"I am the flag of the wives who wait
For the safe return of a martial mate,
A mate gone forth where the war god thrives
To save from sacrifice other men's wives.

"I am the flag of the sweethearts true ;
The often unthought of—the sister, too.
I am the flag of a mother's son,
And won't come down till the victory's won!"

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer ;
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

—William Herschell.

WE assume no personal responsibility whatever for the classification of these departments and the accuracy of the information therein. Every man was asked to give his own record, and all were given the opportunity to verify the data used, which was derived from the most reliable sources. This applies particularly to the last two army departments.

COMPANY M, 139th INFANTRY, 35th DIVISION, A. E. F.

The morning of May 19, 1917, Major Clad Hamilton (later Colonel Hamilton), commanding the 137th Infantry (later Colonel Harvey), Colonel Joe Waters, J. S. Dean (later Colonel Dean), Ferd. J. Funk, W. H. Carpenter (later Captain Carpenter) and myself, met in Topeka to confer with Adjutant-General Martin regarding the organization of a company of infantry in Marion. The 3rd Kansas Infantry was already filled, but General Martin said we might try to organize a battery in the new artillery. Later, Major Hamilton decided the conditions were not favorable for this, but as one town had failed to organize its company of infantry we might have the last company in the 3rd Kansas. Mr. W. H. Carpenter made the final arrangements, and the recruiting office was opened in Marion May 31, 1917.

About forty Marion boys had joined Co. D, 2nd Kansas Infantry, at McPherson; some from Peabody were in Co. K, 3rd Kansas Infantry, at Newton; and others from Lincolnville, Lost Springs and the north part of the county entered Co. I, 3rd Kansas Infantry, at Herington. Nevertheless, despite rain, mud, and even a flood, by June 4th the requisite quota was obtained, and June 9th, 1917, we were mustered in by General Martin as the 3rd Kansas Infantry. Seventy-one signed the muster roll, with George L. Allison, of McPherson, Captain; Edwin V. Burkholder, Marion, First Lieutenant; Wm. R. Carpenter, Marion, Second Lieutenant.

The company drilled two nights a week the rest of the summer, and more men enlisted, until Co. M represented Marion, Peabody, Florence, Burns, Hillsboro, Lost Springs, Lincolnville, Ramona, Lehigh, Durham, Tampa, Aulne, Antelope, and the surrounding county. About twenty-five men from Cottonwood Falls and Bazaar, and a few from Utica and Larned, were assigned to Co. M. We were called into Federal service August 5, 1917, mobilized and billeted in the homes of Marion.

We left for Ft. Sill, Okla., September 25, 1917, arriving the next morning. October 1st we were consolidated with an older Missouri regiment, making the 139th U. S. Infantry. The Missouri officers outranking most of the Kansas officers, Captain C. E. Holt, Co. M, 4th Missouri Infantry, took command of Co. M, 139th Infantry, and Captain Allison was transferred to the Depot Brigade. The Lieutenants from both old companies were assigned to the new organization. The other Missouri officers in Co. M were First Lieutenant George Worthen and Second Lieutenant Walter Dickey. While at first it was hard to accustom ourselves to new surroundings, new conditions and officers, we soon found these boys from St. Joe were mighty fine chaps, and grew to like them as well as if they had come from Kansas.

Then followed seven months of intensive training in a semi-tropical camp, insufficiently equipped, with heat, cold, wind and sand making life almost unendurable. But hard as this was, with its monotonous drilling, its "squads right" and "squads left," with more trench digging than we had in France, I still believe it was one of the main things that hardened us and enabled us to stand so much in France without trouble.

We left Camp Doniphan, Ft. Sill, Okla., April 10th, 1918, on a special Pullman train, being among the first troops to cross the United States. We arrived at Camp Mills April 14th, and after ten days of sight-seeing in New York and vicinity, boarded the White Star Liner "Adriatic" (British), April 24th, 1918.

We were convoyed by twelve transports and two battleships. We took a zig-zag course, going north around Ireland to avoid a flotilla of submarines which were waiting for us near the Irish coast. The next to the last day of the journey we were suddenly attacked by a number of the "subs," but escaped without damage, and were credited with sinking two of them.

We landed at Liverpool, England, May 7th, Companies K, L and M on the "Adriatic," the remainder of the regiment on the "Corona." We arrived at Winchester that night, and were marched out to Camp Wimbledon, an English rest camp. May 10th we sailed from Southampton, crossing the English Channel to Le Havre, France. Here we were placed in a British rest camp, given British equipment and British officers. This was a dark day for us; we felt as though we were not only far from home, but had been indeed disinherited by our country.

We left Le Havre May 14th, expecting to go immediately into the lines, as we were told we were badly needed. We boarded a French train (the famous "Hommes 40, Chevreux 8" box cars) and were among the first Americans to enter Mellville, where we excited no little curiosity among the natives. Mellville was a typical little French village whose inhabitants were all farmers, but only the old men and women were left. In the center of the village stood a large Catholic church surrounded by its graveyard. The houses and the barns were built under the same red tile roof, and in the court at the rear could always be found a pool of stagnant water. Indeed sanitation was unknown by these villagers. It was here we first met the "cootie," soon to become our bosom friend.

This was the blackest period of the war. The Germans were advancing against Amiens and the Channel ports. We were placed in reserve for the British Army in case they should break through. We could hear the big guns every day and see the signal lights and flares by night. Occasionally a Boche plane would come over. The morale of the English was badly shaken; they told us we had come too late—nothing could stop the Germans now, and they would be glad when it was over.

It was here Lieutenant-Colonel Ristine took command of our battalion. I doubt if any one can forget the Colonel Ristine of Mellville days. He exacted the most rigid discipline, especially insisting that every one should be present at reveille and saluting should be carried out to the letter. However, after the Argonne the doughboy said of him, "He may be hard-boiled, but he is no coward."

We cannot leave Mellville without mentioning our British rations. Every man in the company won the S. O. B. R. citation (Survivor of British Rations). The "Tommie" was satisfied with his tea, but we could not get used to it. All that could be cooked on the British rolling kitchen was stew, or "army slum"; and the three weeks there seemed like three months, for we were always hungry.

We were ordered by General Pershing to the American sector, and June 6th started on a three days' forced march to Morgeny. We had full equipment, with an extra amount of English clothing, which made our packs heavy, and the hike very hard.

We entrained the 9th and passed within sight of Paris, arriving at Harold three days ahead of our rations, and had nothing but what we could buy or steal from the French peasants. We reached Jarmenil the next evening. Here we had a different company commander almost every day for two weeks—never the same for more than three days until Major Stepp, our former battalion commander, returned.

We moved again June 28th, stopping two days at Pauxeaux, crossing the mountains to La Bresse July 2nd. We were now in the heart of the Vosges Mountains in the manufacturing regions. The towns were built up and down the valleys, and were much cleaner, and the mills are operated by water power from the mountain streams. Here Colonel Ristine again bore down upon us, and it soon seemed as bad as the Mellville days.

Twice in July we were ordered to Chateau Thierry, but the orders were countermanded and we entered the trenches instead. After the long months of tiresome training this was really a rest, and was perhaps the most pleasant period of our service. We occupied a part of the destroyed village of Metzeral, the Germans the other part. This sector, though quiet when we arrived, soon resembled a Fourth of July night in the States. We were relieved in a month by the 6th Division, and arrived in Kruth about August 17th, where we stayed until September 1st, when we marched all night through rain and mud to the St. Mihiel sector.

Our Division went into reserve near Liverdun for the St. Mihiel drive. September 17th we left in trucks, which meant we were badly needed somewhere. The entire First Army was moving into position that night. The roads were blocked with big guns, supply trains, ambulances, trucks, wagons and troops. The whole country seemed alive and foretelling the gigantic events of the coming week. But we were soon located in the edge of the Argonne Forest, remaining until the night of September 25th, resting and preparing our equipment.

On the eve of the attack Major Stepp called an officers' meeting and read our orders, ending: "The zero hour will be 5 A. M. tomorrow morning and the jumping off line will extend from the English Channel to the Swiss border." We also learned the 35th Division had been given the place of honor—the point where the hardest fighting would probably occur. This knowledge put new life and fight into every one, for we knew this attack meant the beginning of the end.

The order of attack put the 69th Brigade, composed of the 137th and 138th Infantries, in the lead; to be followed two thousand meters distant by the 70th Brigade, consisting of the 139th and 140th Infantries. At the zero hour we advanced, the 137th and 139th on the left flank of Vauquois Hill, the 138th and 140th on the right, thus flanking it from both sides. The 2nd Battalion of our regiment, under Major Jas. Rieger, acted as the "mopping up" battalion. Vauquois Hill was one of the great German strongholds, where the French lost forty thousand men. They told us that with the greatest artillery concentration possible it could not be taken in less than three days; we took it in less than one hour.

It had not been intended that our regiment should take over the firing line until the second day, but about nine o'clock the morning of the first day we found we constituted the front line on the east bank of the Aire River, about a half mile from Varennes, and we remained in the front line until relieved. We recognized some of the Marion boys in Co. D to our right, but found this was "no place to talk over old times." We soon located the chief machine gun nests, and with the aid of a tank Co. L and Co. M captured them by flanking. We then forded the creek and took the east side of Varennes, passing on through the town and taking the Hill. We thought it must be nearly night, but found it was only 10 A. M.

That afternoon we advanced to the line in the front of the Argonne Forest proper. Here a runner was sent by Captain Roberts, in command of Co. M, to Major Stepp, asking for orders, but he returned with the information that Major Stepp had just been killed, and that Captain Roberts should take command of the battalion. About three o'clock next morning we found General Traub and his aide, lost, in front of our line. I took him to Colonel Hamilton, with the 137th in our immediate rear, and sent my other officer with a message from him to Colonel Ristine.

Next morning Co. M was ordered to carry ammunition for the rest of the firing lines, hard pressed and out of ammunition. The second night we captured Baulny and Charpentry, and on the next morning, advancing on Apremont, we were caught between the German machine gun fire and a rolling barrage by the 28th Division. We suffered heavy losses, and for awhile it seemed the entire company would be wiped out. We managed to get out of the barrage and checked the German counter attack, but found ourselves almost surrounded and receiving a murderous fire on the left flank. We felt encouraged when we saw a couple of Second American Cavalry troops trying to break through on our left, but they were forced back. We finally got out of this dangerous position, but our company became badly scattered. That night we cared for our wounded. Next day we reorganized, and with Co. L advanced, but were soon ordered back to Baulny, then to Charpentry and again to the lines in front of Baulny, where we were relieved by the 1st Division October 1st.

We entered action with two hundred twenty men and four officers and came out with one hundred twenty men and one officer. Among those killed were Lieutenant John Cosgrove, Corporal Jay Miesse of Marion, Corporal Russell Blackman of Cottonwood Falls, and Corporals Sues and Siefert of St. Joseph. Sergeant Newcombe died of face wounds later in France.

The regiment had suffered 65 per cent casualties. Our battalion had gone in with eighteen officers and had six left, a First Lieutenant in command. The Major and most of the battalion headquarters officers had been killed in the first day's fighting. It looked as if there were not enough men over to form a division again. But we had accomplished our mission. We had broken the Hindenburg Line at one of its strongest points, advanced more than 12½ kilometers, captured Vauquois Hill, the towns of Vauquois, Varennes, Cheppy, Charpentry and Baulny, taken over a thousand prisoners and a larger number of guns and field pieces. The division lost over one thousand killed, six thousand eight hundred ninety-four wounded, and one hundred sixty-nine captured.

When relieved by the 1st Division we were two days' march from our kitchens and blankets. Food was brought to us and we cooked our own share as best we could. We slept without blankets, raincoats or fires. In a few days we reached Luppy la Petite, where we rested two days, then, receiving fifty replacements, began drilling. In ten days we went to the Sommedieu sector and then into the lines near Verdun until November 5th. The 81st Division relieved us here, and we were in position for the drive on Metz when the armistice was signed, and we were sent to Vignot near Commercy. Here we were billeted in open barns without sufficient clothing and fuel. Here, also, we received the never to be forgotten officers from the front lines of the S. O. S., who came to tell us how to be real soldiers, and who spent most of their time making every one uncomfortable. All the usual rumors were heard, but when General Pershing and the Prince of Wales came to review us we knew we were going home.

March 10th we left for the Le Mans area, traveling in American box cars, which was luxury for us. At St. Celerin we organized a ball team and defeated every company in the regiment save the headquarters, to which we lost one, defeating them in return. We reached St. Nazaire as the 91st Division was leaving. Here we were inspected, "de-cootieized," exchanged our francs for American money, and on the 13th of April boarded the U. S. S. Matsonia for home. We were a very orderly "bunch" indeed, for we had been told that any one who yelled "Who won the war?" or expressed too strongly his love for the "Frogs" would not be permitted to sail. There was a large crowd on the wharf, among them many elderly French, who lifted their hats in farewell while their eyes filled with tears.

We were delayed by storm, but made the trip in twelve days. Some of us stayed up all night the last night before landing, while others were up very early, all longing for the first glimpse of the homeland. I do not know how the gates of heaven look, but I do know they can never look better to us than did the shores of the United States as we sailed up Chesapeake Bay that bright, sunshiny April morning. We landed April 24th, 1919, just one year from the day we embarked on the "Adriatic."

In France there were arguments as to who won the war. So far as the American Army is concerned it was the doughboy. The Navy and all other branches had their share, but the war could not be won without a fight and some one to fight, and that some one was the man with the rifle, who knew but one order, "Go ahead and keep going!" and who did not stop even when all officers were lost and there was no one to command. I have seen them without water or food for days, and when the order came to attack, arise as one man and advance in the face of the most withering fire the enemy could give. And this same doughboy, when not fighting, was drilling eight or ten hours daily, hiking—not riding—and doing fatigue work for himself and special units as well, and always under the strictest discipline—a new experience for the average American.

Every man in Co. M was that kind of a doughboy. All exhibited the greatest courage, and proved absolutely dependable. A few men were cited; many others deserved to be. Co. M was awarded more Distinguished Service Crosses than any other company in the regiment, and all the men have the satisfaction of knowing in their hearts that they did their full duty.

We were at Camp Stuart five days and were "fed up" on pie and ice cream. We were inspected, issued new clothing, and the replacements sent to their respective camps. The company now consisted of the old men from Kansas and Missouri, and we were happy indeed when we boarded the Pullman for home. At St. Joseph we had a wonderful reception, and Co. M led the parade. Another splendid reception in Topeka, and then we came to Funston, where we were amazed by the accommodations and luxuries. When we saw electric lights, spring beds, baths, and other comforts, with theaters, restaurants, banks, stores, etc., near at hand, we could not realize it could be an army camp.

Then May 8, 1919, we were discharged and home once more. And who of us can ever forget our reception here? Not its noise or its splendor, but the fact that you took us in your arms and gave us a real welcome home shall keep it in our hearts forever.

And now that our army life with its good and its bad is ended, we should not forget the lessons learned. And we know we shall never forget the comrades who remain in France, sleeping beneath the white crosses. To them we give thanks; their sacrifice made victory possible and enabled us to reap the benefits of the prosperity, happiness and peace of today.

EXPLANATION

In the above account I have merely endeavored to relate a few of the main experiences and travels of Company M in the late war. There are many deeds of valor and many names that should be mentioned in a complete history of M Company, which I regret would make this account too long for this book, and for that reason this history deals only with the company as a whole.

COMPANY D, 137th INFANTRY, 35th DIVISION, A. E. F.

Co. D, McPherson, Kan., had a three-year militia existence prior to April 6, 1917, with about 50 men and officers. Fred Ellis, of McPherson, was appointed commander of the company April 17, 1917, and by July 4th, 1917, there were 150 volunteers, about forty coming from Marion County. We were called into Federal service August 5, 1917, and went into camp on the Court House Square, where we remained under strict military discipline until the latter part of September, when we were ordered to Camp Doniphan, Okla. Here Co. D, 2nd Kansas Infantry, was merged with Co. D, 1st Kansas Infantry, and became Co. D, 137th Infantry, under command of Capt. Troys, Capt. Fred Ellis being transferred to Headquarters Company, to the great regret of all.

After eight months' training we entrained April 13, 1918, via Canada and Niagara Falls, arriving at Camp Mills April 16, 1918. Ten days were spent in sight-seeing in New York, and then, on board the U. S. S. Aeneas, we sailed by an indirect route north to Greenland and down the west coast of Scotland, reaching Liverpool, England, May 7th, 1918. The evening of May 8th we marched aboard a cattle boat in pitch darkness and crossed the submarine-infested Channel, landing next morning at Le Havre, France. A few days rest, and then we were placed in reserve with the British Army at Eu, France, training until June 6th, when we were ordered to Alsace, via Paris. We camped at Raon-Aux Bois, and June 21, 1918, had the first pay since leaving Doniphan, April 13th, 1918.

June 28, 1918, we started to the trenches at Elsbrucke, where we were for twenty-one days. We alternated between rest camp and trenches until September 10, 1918, when we were placed in reserve for the battle of St. Mihiel. Transferred September 18 to Fougoucourt, and then marched into the Argonne Forest, entering the trenches September 26, 1918, fighting for six days and nights without shelter or relief. Co. D led the regiment in the advance, going beyond Exermont. October 1st, the 1st Division relieved the 35th, and we went to the rest camp at Rembercourt.

We entered battle 200 strong and came out with but 90 men, but we had helped drive back the famous Prussian Guard nearly eight miles.

We re-entered the trenches October 1, in the Somme Dieue sector, holding the line until relieved November 4th. Were advancing towards Metz when the joyous news of the armistice reached us at Sampigny. Here we wintered, and March 7, 1919, traveled by box cars to LeMans and Brest, sailing one year from the day we left Doniphan, April 13, 1919. Landed April 23 and started for Kansas May 3rd, 1919. Paraded in Kansas City, Mo., May 6th, and Topeka, May 7th, 1919. Were discharged May 9, 1919, at Camp Funston, Kan.

ARTILLERY.

Out of every hundred days that our combat divisions were in line in France, they were supported by their own artillery for 75 days, by British artillery 5 days, and by French for 1½ days.

The number of rounds of complete artillery ammunition produced in American plants was in excess of 20,000,000, as compared with 9,000,000 rounds secured from the British and French.

At the end of the war the American production of smokeless powder was 45 per cent greater than the French and British combined; the American production of high explosives was also 40 per cent greater than Great Britain's, and nearly double that of France.

The total number of tanks produced in this country to March 31, 1919, was 773.

AERO.

The United States produced during the war 642 observation balloons and shipped 369 overseas. We destroyed 71 enemy balloons and lost 43 to the enemy.

More than 5,000 aviation pilots and observers were sent overseas.

The total personnel of the air service—officers, students and enlisted men—increased from 1,200 at the outbreak of war to nearly 200,000 at the close.

The first fliers in action in the American uniform were members of the LaFayette Escadrille, who were transferred from the French to the American service in December, 1917.

American air forces at the front grew from three squadrons in April to 45 squadrons in November, 1918. The latter had an equipment of 740 planes.

The American air forces participated in the battles of Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. They brought down in combat 755 enemy planes, while our loss was 357 planes.

FACTS.

There were about 200,000 commissioned officers in the army during the war. At the beginning there were 6,000 officers in the Regular Army and 14,000 trained in the National Guard.

France and England sent nearly 800 specially skilled officers to the United States as instructors.

American armed forces numbered 4,800,000, of which 4,000,000 served in the Army.

The total men registered under the draft acts were 24,234,021, of which 12 per cent were inducted into service.

The largest number of soldiers was furnished by New York, 367,864, or 9.79 per cent, the smallest number by Nevada, 0.14 per cent.

Of every 100 men, 10 were National Guardsmen, 13 were Regulars, and 77 from the selective draft.

There were about 3,500 men in a regiment, and about 1,000 officers and 27,000 men in a division.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

There were 31,251 physicians from civil life commissioned in the Medical Corps. Five out of every six men sent to the hospitals on account of wounds were returned to duty. Deaths from battle were twice the number caused by disease in the expeditionary forces. Typhoid fever was practically eliminated from among our troops in this war.

Pneumonia killed more soldiers than were killed in action. More than 40,000 died of this disease; of this number more than 25,000 resulting from influenza.

From September 14 to November 8, 1918, 316,000 cases of influenza and 53,449 of pneumonia were reported among the troops in the United States.

The next most serious disease was meningitis, causing 2,000 deaths.

The death rate from all diseases in the Mexican War was at the rate of 110 per year in each 1000 men; in the Civil War, 65; in the Spanish War, 26; in the World War, 19.

HOSPITAL CORPS.

There were constructed in the United States 149 hospitals, with 123,899 bed capacity. Of these, 48, with 6,056 bed capacity, were remodeled post hospitals.

On December 1, 1919, there were available in army hospitals 399,510 beds—287,290 overseas, and 112,220 in the United States.

During the entire war American hospital facilities in France were in excess of the needs of the American forces.

PHYSICALLY DISQUALIFIED.

A total of 33 per cent were rejected as physically unfit during the first four months of the war. Flat-foot was the greatest defect. It was found in one-fifth of the men examined.

100,000 country boys would furnish 4,790 more acceptable soldiers than an equal number of city boys; the same number of whites would furnish 1,240 more than an equal number of colored, and native born 3,500 more soldiers than would a like number of foreign born.

Tuberculosis was found in exceptional amount among the men from Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and California.

Defective vision was found more commonly among the recruits from New England and New York City; defective physical development also is more often found in the New England men.

FACTS.

The number of American lives lost in the war were 122,500, of which about 10,000 were in the Navy. The casualty rate in the infantry was higher than any other service, and that of the officers higher than that of the men.

There were 768 soldiers lost at sea.

The entire cost of the war nearly equals the total cost of our Government from 1791 to 1914. It is greater than the value of all the gold produced in the world from the discovery of America to the outbreak of the World War.

The battle of the Meuse-Argonne was one of the greatest of the world. It lasted six times as long as the battle of the Wilderness, and the actual weight of the ammunition used was greater than that used by the Union forces during the entire Civil War.

There were 29 combat divisions in action. The 1st was first in line and first to enter an active sector. The 77th Division, composed largely of New York City troops, made the greatest advance—nearly 45 miles. The average gain for each division was 17 miles.

The number of German prisoners taken was 63,079; the total number of Americans taken by the Germans was 4,434.

American troops fought 17 battles, lasting 200 days, and were in service 19 months.

Of every three American soldiers who reached France, two took part in battle.

FACTS

In 19 months more than 2,000,000 American soldiers were transported to France. The highest troop-carrying record was in July, 1918, when 306,000 men were taken over, and in May, 1919, when 330,000 were returned.

The fastest transports have been the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, which have made complete "turn-arounds," taken on new troops and started back in 19 days. Troop ships averaged one complete trip every 35 days. The greatest troop carrier of all ships was the Leviathan, which landed 12,000 men in France every month.

The cargo fleet was almost exclusively American.

The first cargo transported to the forces abroad was in June, 1917, amounting to 16,000 tons; during the last month of the war shipments exceeded 800,000 tons.

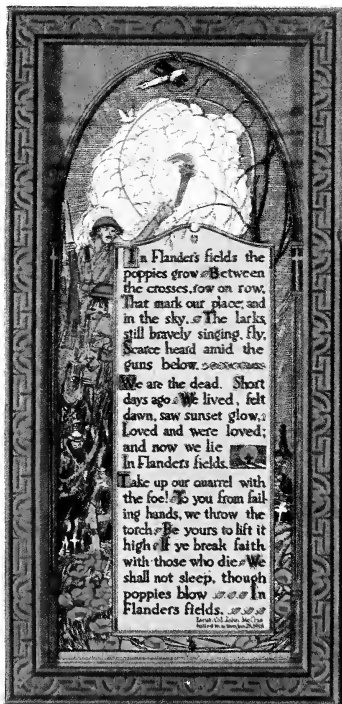

Cargo ships averaged one complete trip every 70 days.

Owing to the efficiency of the naval protection afforded, no American troop transport was lost on its way to Europe.

In Memoriam

Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends.—Jesus.

Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life... shall save it.—Jesus.

In Flanders fields the poppies grow Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky The larks
still bravely singing, fly, Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago We lived, felt
dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved;
and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe! To you from failing hands, we throw the torch Be yours to lift it high; if ye break faith with those who die We shall not sleep, though poppies blow In
Flanders fields.

James Kirkpatrick, M.A., 1918
Revised by a woman, 1921

Oh you who sleep in Flanders fields— Sleep sweet— to rise anew! We caught the torch you threw,
And holding high we kept the faith with those who died.

We cherish to the poppy
red That grows on fields where valor led: It seems to signal to the skies That blood of heroes never dies
But lends a lustre to the red
Of the flower that blooms above the dead In Flanders fields.

And now the torch and poppy red We wear in honor of our dead Fear naught that ye have died for naught We've learned the lesson that ye taught In Flanders fields.

The Recessional

By RUDYARD KIPLING

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle line—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies—
The Captains and the Kings depart—
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-flung our navies melt away—
On dune and headland sinks the fire—
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the Nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use—
Or lesser breeds without the law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard.
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!

Amen.
